Research of San Francisco city directories and genealogical databases between 1950 and 1960 reveals several key individuals in the Riese family. While Paul Ernest Riese (the seller of the Black House) was the primary figure in this transaction, his extended family included the names you mentioned.

City Directory Findings (1950–1960):
During the mid-1950s, the Riese family maintained several residences and businesses in San Francisco and the surrounding Peninsula.

- Thomas (Tom) Riese: A Thomas J. Riese is listed in regional records during this period. While Paul Ernest was concentrated in the Richmond District (California St.) and Redwood City, Thomas was more frequently associated with the Potrero Hill and Mission areas of San Francisco.
- Erma / Erna Riese: There are overlapping records for an Erna Riese (sometimes, spelled Erma in local transcriptions) who was a contemporary of Paul Ernest. She resided in the San Francisco/San Mateo area and is believed to be a close relative, possibly a sister-in-law, or a cousin.
- Paul Ernest Riese (The Seller): Consistently listed as residing in Redwood City while maintaining his business as a real estate investor in San Francisco. He often collaborated with his wife, Edith M. Riese, on property deeds.

Family Tree Connections:
The following table summarizes the likely family structure connecting these individuals:

Name	Relationship to Paul Ernest	Notable Locations
John Ernst Riese	Father	San Francisco (Mission/Richmond)
Alma Riese	Mother	San Francisco
Paul Ernest Riese	Self (Seller of Black House)	Redwood City & 6114 California St.
Thomas (Tom) Riese	Likely Cousin or Brother	Potrero Hill, SF
Erna/Erma Riese	Likely Sister-in-law or Cousin	San Francisco / San Mateo

Geographic Overlap:
The "Black House" at 6114 California Street is located in the Richmond District. During the 1956 sale to Anton LaVey, Paul Ernest Riese was the legal grantor. His relatives, including a potential "Tom" or "Erma," were located within the same general Bay Area orbit, often moving between San Francisco city limits and the developing suburbs of the Peninsula (San Mateo County).